Grandma Mickman in 1934

Grandma Mickman learned to make wreaths from her mother when growing up on a fjord in Norway in the late 1800's. Each year they would display their Christmas Wreath on the door of their small cottage to celebrate the season.

During the Great Depression in 1934, Grandma had an idea to make wreaths and sell them to earn extra money for her young family in St. Paul, MN. A business was born!

Since our Grandma taught us how to make wreaths as young boys, my brother Chris and I have taken pride in standing behind each of the products we supply to our clientele.

If for any reason you are not pleased with the quality of our products, please notify your personal Fundraising Coach immediately.
